Phoenix, AZ - For Immediate Release

Navajo Art & Rug Auction at Pueblo Grande Museum

Pueblo Grande Museum will be hosting an art auction and rug preview on Friday, November 20, 2009 at 7pm featuring Auctioneers Bruce Burnham, owner of the Burnham Trading Post in Sanders, Arizona and trader Hank Blair. Over the years as an Indian Trader Mr. Burnham has gained recognition for his dedication to the Navajo people and their art and is often called upon to lecture on Navajo culture and their arts and crafts. He and his family are organizing the art and rug auction and have brought in exquisite examples of what will be auctioned off on November 21, 2009 at Pueblo Grande Museums Navajo Rug Auction.

The Navajo Rug Auction will begin at 10am with a preview and bidding will begin at 12 noon. A portion of the proceeds from the auctions will go to benefit the Pueblo Grande Museum and Archaeological Park Auxiliary. The auction will be a wonderful event with free museum admission, beautiful art and rugs and frybread. Come and enjoy the sites and sounds and have a traditional Native American frybread taco!

Burnham Trading Company will accept items on consignment for the art and rug auctions. They will be accepting these items November 18th – 20th at Drum Beat Indian Arts Store located at 4143 North 16th St, #1, Phoenix, AZ from 10am to 5pm.

Join us for a grand time and a good cause! For more information visit our website at www.pueblogrande.com or call us at 602-495-0901.
